HGH (Human Growth Hormone) was first discovered in 1920. Scientifically engineered HGH has been available since 1985 but didn't gain notoriety until it recently became a widespread concern for major league baseball and other sports organizations due to its popularity among the players.

Known as "The Fountain of Youth", men and women alike have used HGH to replace their declining levels of the hormone, which may decrease by as much as 80% as we age. Even Sylvester Stallone promotes HGH and reported in Time Magazine's February 4, 2008 issue that he used it to get buff for his latest movie. "Everyone over 40 years old would be wise to investigate it because it increases the quality of your life," he said. However, as with any prescription drug, usage carries the risk of adverse side effects.

A safer alternative, HGH Spray (an "HGH Releaser" herbal supplement) was developed to provide precursor nutrients needed by the body to help boost the body's naturally occurring production of HGH. It is designed to stimulate the pituitary gland, resulting in higher levels of the body's own natural HGH without the risk of adverse side effects.

There is no evidence to indicate that HGH Spray has any known drug interactions or any unfavorable long term side effects. This product is manufactured in pharmaceutical quality laboratories of the highest standards in the United States.

HGH releasers have been found to offer the same anti-aging benefits provided by synthetic HGH at a fraction of the cost and without a prescription. The health benefits have been documented in clinical studies, and researchers believe that the age related drop in HGH levels is responsible for many health problems and conditions. Some of the noted benefits include:

- Improved immune system
- Weight Loss and increased muscle strength
- Increased energy and stamina
- Improved memory and mental alertness
- Increased skin elasticity and decreased wrinkles
- Reduces mood swings and improves sleep
- Improves blood pressure and cholesterol
- Increases sexual potency
- Is a powerful anti-obesity hormone and much more
